PROFILE

I am an enthusiastic developer who loves to create useful and intuitive applications and interfaces. I have experience working with user-centered design and how to include the user in the development process. I can develop wire-frames at varying levels of fidelity and enjoy prototyping ideas. I have experience in front-end coding and some back-end (Java). I enjoy every step of the process, from designing to developing. I have worked with distributed teams using version control systems (Git).

As a colleague, I am well-liked and appreciate being part of a team where it is possible to get and give constructive criticism, as I find it essential to get the best results.

My objective is to succeed as a creative designer and developer dedicated to building and optimizing performance on user-centric applications. I expect a steep learning curve to get there.

A short description, as well as images of the projects below, can also be seen at henrietteriis.dk

MASTER THESIS

Jan 2019 - Jun 2019

Thesis titel: Supporting Parenthood - A mobile app for parents of children with ADHD. In close collaboration with parents with children diagnosed with ADHD, we developed a prototype for an app that can help them in everyday life. The project is based on the specialization course of human-computer interaction. My main task was to design the prototype, as well as make it interactive for use in user tests.

Result: 10/B

SEMESTER PROJECTS

Fall semester 2017

Semester titel: Development of software. We developed the java application Socialin'. A fully functional java application.

Spring semester 2018

Semester titel: User-Centered Software Development. We developed a web application in PHP and MySQL, where students at AAU were able to find a tutor. We chose PHP as programming language as it was best suited for the project, even though none of us had any prior experience with it. My main focus was the development of the front-end.
